REFERENCE DOCUMENTS FOR THE GENERAL MEETINGProposal No. 1: Reduction in Amount of Capital and Capital Reserve, and Appropriation of Surplus

1. Reasons for Proposal

The Company is in the state of capital deficit, meaning Net Asset amount is smaller than Capital amount. In order to solve this situation, and rectify Company's capital structure and improve flexibility of the capital policy, the Company proposes to reduce in amount of Capital and Capital Reserve and transfer the reduced amount to Other Capital Surplus pursuant to Paragraph 1, Article 447 and Paragraph 1, Article 448 of the Companies Act, and transfer the increased Other Capital Surplus amount to Retained Earnings pursuant to Article 452 of the Companies Act.

The Company intends to reduce only the amount of Capital and Capital Reserve and not to change the number of outstanding shares. Therefore this will not affect the number of shares owned by the shareholders.

The reduction in amount of Capital and Capital Reserve will not change the Net Asset amount per share because the reduction is about transfer between accounting items in Net Asset section of the balance sheet and it does not change the net capital amount and the number of outstanding shares.

Business Report

(For the Period from April 1, 2014 to March 31, 2015 (the “Period”))

1. Overview of Operations of the Group

(1) Business Progress and Results

(i) Overview

In spite of the impetus toward recovery driven by the steady US economy supported mainly by consumer demands, the world economy was subject to downward pressure from worsening economies of resource-supplying countries due to stagnant natural resource prices since the second half of the Period, slowdown of Chinese economy due to the economic structural reforms and sense of uncertainty regarding the future prospects of the European economy. Growth remained sluggish in the Japanese economy due to stagnant private consumption resulting from reduction of demand after the consumption tax hike and drop of actual wages.

Under the economic environment having regional disparities, the relevant markets of semiconductor devices, which are the main business domain of Renesas Group (the “Group”), remained steady, driven as before by semiconductor devices for smartphones, industrial systems and cars.

In this business climate, aiming to continue to survive and thrive in the dramatically changing and fiercely competitive global semiconductor market and aspiring to be a global enterprise capable of contributing to the development of society and industry, the Group put all-out efforts to tackle the two key challenges being “improved profit ratio through restructuring” and “further growth in profits through business selection and concentration” based on the “Reform Plan” adopted in October 2013, concepts of which are to reform the Group into a market, profit and globally-oriented enterprise.

Regarding “improved profit ratio through restructuring”, the Group has concentrated on a variety of structural reforms covering all areas of its operations in order to establish a firm business structure capable of generating stable operating profits regardless of any kind of business environment.

First, with regard to the manufacturing side, the Group continued to implement the structural reforms that had started earlier. During the Period, the manufacturing functions carried out by the production division of Renesas Electronics Corporation and 11 domestic subsidiaries was reviewed in order to improve manufacturing efficiency and strengthen cost competitiveness. These functions were reorganized and integrated into two companies, Renesas Semiconductor Manufacturing Co., Ltd., specializing in front-end operations (semiconductor wafer processing) and Renesas Semiconductor Package & Test Solutions Co., Ltd., specializing in back-end operations (semiconductor assembly and testing), and consolidation of manufacturing locations was implemented as well.

Second, with respect to the design and development side, the structure was reviewed in order to make it more robust and efficient. Specifically, a decision was made to reorganize and integrate the design and development operations carried out by the design and development division of Renesas Electronics Corporation and 3 domestic subsidiaries so that Renesas Electronics Corporation will be responsible for design and development related to kit solutions¹ and platform solutions², Renesas System Design Co., Ltd.³ will be responsible for design and development related to device solutions⁴ and Renesas Engineering Services, Co., Ltd. will be responsible for semiconductor design and technical support. This was completed in April 2015 and the reorganization of design and development locations was implemented according to the plan. In addition, Renesas Mobile Corporation, a subsidiary engaged in design and development of semiconductor devices for automotive information systems, was absorbed into Renesas Electronics Corporation.

Third, to achieve the headcounts proportional to the Group, an early retirement incentive program was implemented for domestic employees of the Group. Also, agreements were reached to transfer the women's softball team to Bic Camera Inc. and the badminton team to Saishunkan Co., Ltd., and implemented in April 2015.

The Group also carried out drastic reforms of the internal systems underlying its business operations. Improvement was made on the mechanism to evaluate profitability and make decisions for business deals and product developments in order to ensure profitability of new business deals and developments. Also, in order to make the Group management more robust and efficient, new decision-making and approval rules common to the entire Group were introduced. In addition, to maximize the motivation of individual employees and make the most of their abilities by properly reflecting their roles and accomplishments, and to realize the corporate philosophy and vision globally, the personnel system for domestic employees was revised to enhance global competitiveness, results-oriented mindset and human resource development. Finally, key performance indexes ("KPI") were established for each unit of Renesas Electronics Corporation and a mechanism was introduced on a trial basis to reflect the achievement into performance appraisal in preparation for the full implementation later on.

Regarding "further growth in profits through business selection and concentration", the Group had identified the five business domains in which it can demonstrate its strengths at the global level and expect stable profit growth: "Automotive control," "Automotive information," "Industrial/ Home electronics", "OA/ICT (office automation/information and communication technology)" and "General-purpose products". In order to improve the product mix, strengthen product competitiveness and improve gross profit ratio in these five domains, the management resources were concentrated on these domains and efforts were made to improve or discontinue unprofitable products and transactions.

As a result of these initiatives, a number of high value added semiconductor products were brought to the market in response to demands of the market and customers. Examples include "RH850/P1x-C series", 32-bit microcontrollers incorporating various functions required by automotive driver-assistance systems which have rapidly become more sophisticated in recent years, and "RZ/T1 group", which are equipped with high real-time control functionalities and industrial network processing capabilities for industrial control systems which require high real-time response.

Furthermore, to provide customers and other stakeholders with better understanding of the management policy, plans and the cutting-edge semiconductor solutions of the Group, “Renesas DevCon (Developers Conference) Japan 2014” was held in Tokyo and Osaka and favorably received by many people.

To promote the global expansion, Renesas Electronics India Pvt. Ltd. was established as a new sales location in India, where high growth is anticipated in the semiconductor market. Also, organizations specializing in the development of semiconductor products for automotive driver-assistance systems, an area where strong demand is expected going forward, were set up at Renesas Electronics Corporation and its European subsidiary, Renesas Electronics Europe GmbH (Germany).

In addition to the above, in line with efforts to phase out non-core businesses, all shares of Renesas SP Drivers Inc., which was engaged in small- and medium-sized display driver ICs, were transferred to the European subsidiary of Synaptics Incorporated, a US company.

- (Note) 1. Kit solution: A solution providing combination of semiconductor devices optimal for customer products.
2. Platform solution: A solution providing a package of semiconductor devices and software optimal for customer products in response to sophistication and complication of customer products.
3. Renesas System Design Co., Ltd.: A company formerly known as Renesas Solutions Corp, which changed the name in April 2015
4. Device solution: A solution providing semiconductor devices optimal for customer products.

(ii) Summary of Consolidated Financial Results

Consolidated financial results of the Group for the Period were as follows.

Consolidated Net sales

Consolidated net sales for the Period were 799.1 billion yen, a decrease of 5.0% year on year. This was mainly due to decrease of semiconductor sales for mobile handsets, such as small- and medium-sized display driver ICs, and consumer electronic devices as a result of the Group’s ongoing business selection and concentration, despite steady sales of automotive and industrial semiconductors and improved exchange rate.

The consolidated net sales of the Group are composed of the main product groups, “Automotive Business” and “General-Purpose Business”, and “Other Semiconductor Business” and “Sales from Others” that fit into neither of the above product categories. Sales of respective areas were as follows:

(Automotive Business)

The automotive business includes the product categories “Automotive control,” comprising semiconductor devices for controlling automobile engines and bodies, and “Automotive information,” comprising semiconductor devices used in automotive information systems such as navigation systems. The Group supplies microcontrollers, analog & power semiconductor devices, and system-on-chip (“SoC”) products in each of these categories.

Sales of the Automotive Business for the Period were 323.1 billion yen, an increase of 6.4% year on year. Sales increased in both “Automotive control” and “Automotive information” categories.

(General- Purpose Business)

The general-purpose business includes the product categories “Industrial/Home electronics,” comprising semiconductor devices for industrial equipment, white goods, etc., “OA/ICT,” comprising semiconductor devices for office automation (OA) equipment such as multifunction printers and information and communication technology (ICT) equipment such as network infrastructure, and “General-purpose,” comprising general-purpose semiconductor devices for other applications. The Group supplies microcontrollers, analog & power semiconductor devices, and SoC products in each of these categories.

Sales of the General-Purpose business for the Period were 425.5 billion yen, a decrease of 12.7% year on year. This was mainly due to the Group’s promotion of selection and concentration of businesses which led to decreased sales in the “OA/ICT” and “General-Purpose” categories, despite the increased sales in the “Industrial/Home electronics”. In particular, sales in the “General-Purpose” category decreased year on year as a result of transferring all of the shares in Renesas SP Drivers Inc., a supplier of small- and medium-sized display driver ICs, to a European subsidiary of Synaptics Incorporated.

(Other Semiconductor Business)

Sales of other semiconductor business include production by commissioning and royalties. Sales of other semiconductors for the Period were 4.7 billion yen, a 19.4% decrease year on year.

(Sales from Others)

Sales from others include non-semiconductor products sold on a resale basis by the Group’s sales subsidiaries, and development and production by commissioning conducted by the Group’s design and manufacturing subsidiaries. Sales from others for the Period were 37.8 billion yen, a 4.3% increase year on year. This was mainly due to the fact that the Group sold small- and medium-sized display driver ICs for the European subsidiary of Synaptics Incorporated until the end of October 2014 when the sales system of such subsidiary was established, even after transfer of the shares in Renesas SP Drivers Inc. on October 1 2014.

Consolidated Operating Income (Loss)

Consolidated operating income for the Period was 104.4 billion yen, an improvement of 36.8 billion yen from the previous period. This was mainly due to the improved earnings structure and gross profit margin ratio through implementation of the business selection and concentration and structural reforms, and improved exchange rate.

Consolidated Ordinary Income (Loss)

Consolidated ordinary income for the Period was 105.3 billion yen. This was due to non-operating income of 0.9 billion yen from recording non-operating income of 7.7 billion yen including foreign exchange gains etc., despite recording of non-operating expenses of 6.8 billion yen including interest expenses etc..

Consolidated Net Income (Loss)

Consolidated net income for the Period was 82.4 billion yen. This was mainly due to the improved operating income and ordinary income compared with the previous period as a result of implementation of structural reforms, and recording of special income of 23.1 billion yen from business transfer.

We are afraid that we will forego a year-end dividend to our shareholders. The Group will put all-out efforts for further improvement of profitability and stabilization of the business toward the gear change for growth. In this regard, we respectfully ask for our shareholders' continuous understanding and support.

(2) Issues to be Addressed by the Group

As described in "1-(1) Business Progress and Results of the Group", the operating income for the Period improved from the previous period. Nevertheless, in order to deal flexibly with changes in the business climate and achieve stable business operation, further enhancement of profitability is needed.

The Group, as described in "1-(1) Business Progress and Results of the Group", implemented "Improved profit ratio through restructuring" based on the "Reform Plan" and focused on achieving "Further growth in profits through business selection and concentration" in the Period. The Group will continue to tackle these challenges.

(i) Improved Profit Ratio through Restructuring

The Group has been promoting reforms with focus on thorough emphasis on profitability and implementation of autonomous management based on the "Reform Plan".

With regard to the manufacturing, the Group has been promoting production structure reforms in accordance with its basic policies of (1) boosting production efficiency, (2) building a flexible production system to respond to rapid market changes, and (3) maintaining and continuing in-house plants with advanced technologies and cost competitiveness. The Group tackled various production structure reforms during the Period, including the reorganization and integration of domestic front-end and back-end operations which were distributed among the Group. Based on the above policies, the Group will continue to steadily promote reforms including optimization of manufacturing lines or improvement of production efficiency through increased turnover rates.

With regard to the design and development, the Group tackled the reorganization and integration of domestic design and development operations. The Group will continue to improve work efficiency through standardization and unification of the design and development work process to match the Group's focus business domains, and reorganize design locations with a view to accelerating decision making.

As the Group implements these restructuring measures, the Group will also proceed with efforts to revise the personnel system, from the standpoint of human resource development and organizational invigoration, such as hiring, education or treatment of employees who will contribute to the realization of our corporate philosophy and vision. The Group tackled revision of the personnel system mainly in Japan during the Period and will continue to globalize this effort. In addition, the Group will start global implementation of the mechanism to reflect KPI achievement into performance appraisal which was tried in this Period, and thoroughly implement results oriented appraisal aligned with the Group's consolidated business performance.

By carrying out these restructuring measures, the Group aims to boost operational efficiency in production and design/development while speeding up decision-making, and thereby to realize improved profitability.

(ii) Further Growth in Profits through Business Selection and Concentration

The Group focuses on the following five application fields where the Group possesses unique strengths and can compete most effectively: Automotive control, Automotive information, Industrial/Home electronics, OA/ICT, and General-purpose products.

The Group will also accelerate business selection and concentration aimed at the realization of steady growth in profits in these fields, and in this way the Group will improve its product mix and strengthen the competitiveness of its products. In the Period the Group pulled out of non-core businesses such as transfer of the shares in Renesas SP Drivers Inc., a supplier of small- and medium-sized display driver ICs. The Group will continue to select businesses based on future profitability, focusing on the above application fields where the Group can display its unique strengths, and improve its product mix by concentrating management resources on these key businesses.

The Group will strive for further growth in profits by enhancing the ability to deliver solutions and thereby boosting added value in the key business domains as well as accelerating concentration on the growth/high profit areas through business selection and concentration.

(3) Research and Development by the Group

(i) Commercialization of safety microcontrollers with all-in-one support for driver-assistance systems as a step toward self-driving cars

The Group developed the “RH850/P1x-C series” of 32-bit automotive microcontrollers, which satisfy high-level safety requirements and enable coordinated control of multiple systems, to enable the realization of driver-assistance systems providing a safe, secure, and comfortable driving experience. Sample shipments started in February 2015.

In recent years driver-assistance systems have rapidly become more sophisticated in the lead up to self-driving cars. The Group believes that in order to realize this autonomous vision solutions are required in four areas: safety, security, sensors and networks. This product is an all-in-one microcontroller incorporating all these four solutions in a single chip.

Specifically, with regard to “safety,” it is essential to provide functional safety by constantly monitoring the driver-assistance system to ensure it is operating safely and normally, and maintaining safety even if a malfunction occurs. This product is equipped with two CPUs having identical configurations and operating in a lockstep¹ system. This is backed up by a number of additional functions designed to ensure functional safety.

With regard to “security,” while the use of IT through communication with the social infrastructure to obtain information such as road conditions is advancing in the lead up to self-driving cars, it is necessary to preemptively prevent hacking risks. This product integrates a hardware security module handling encryption processing, which is the foundation of security, and provides robust protection against tampering of the system.

With regard to “sensors,” in order to respond to all types of conditions while driving, it is necessary to collect information from as many sensors as possible, including cameras and lasers. This means that a larger memory capacity for programs and faster processing capability are needed. This product is provided with a large-capacity flash memory using the 40-nanometer process², among the most advanced in the industry, and high-performance CPU. This enables high-speed processing of large volumes of data collected by the sensors.

Finally, with regard to “networking,” it is necessary to implement coordinated control when linking various driver-assistance-related systems, based on the information collected by the sensors. This product is equipped with communication functions that comply with a variety of automotive networking standards.

In addition, the Group is focusing on development of the embedded flash memory technology for microcontrollers, which is adopted in this product and expected to support the next generation car society and lead the industry. The Group successfully developed a new flash memory technology that delivers the highest level of performance in the industry in February 2015, and became the first in the industry to announce microcontrollers embedded with flash memory based on the 28-nanometer embedded flash memory technology at the International Solid-State Circuits Conference (ISSCC) 2015 in San Francisco.

The Group is committed to deploying the platform supporting safe, secure and comfortable automobiles to various automotive applications and delivering solutions aimed at creating new value for the next generation automotive systems, through exploitation of this technology with the most advanced microcontrollers including the RH850/P1x-C series as the basis.

(ii) Commercialization of the factory automation solutions that dramatically boost productivity in the industrial field

The Group developed the RZ/T1 group, a factory automation solution achieving high speed and responsiveness with built-in industrial network functionality for industrial control equipment that require sophisticated real-time control, such as industrial motors or AC servo drives. Sample shipments started in January 2015.

As demand for higher productivity has increased in recent years, higher levels of performance and networking capabilities are expected of control equipment used in factories. Especially for motor controllers such as AC servo drives, a high-level real-time control, which provides invariable processing time regardless of the circumstances, is required, in addition to high level CPU performance. With regard to the networks used in factories, multiple open standards such as Ethernet communication standards⁴ have been becoming prevalent. To support such standards it is necessary to employ multiple semiconductor chips for each communication standard, leading to the increased system cost and circuit board footprint.

To meet the market demand outlined above, this product is built around an ARM[®] Cortex[®]-R4F core operating at up to 600 megahertz and is configured with tightly coupled memory⁵ (TCM). This enables higher speed compared with conventional microcontrollers with embedded flash memory while delivering real-time responsiveness superior to that of conventional microprocessors. This product also integrates the R-IN engine, a dedicated industrial Ethernet communication circuit with a proven track record in the R-IN series. This provides support for multiple industrial Ethernet communication standards by a single chip, reducing both system cost and circuit board footprint.

By this product which has realized high-performance real-time control and industrial networking capabilities on a single chip, the Group will contribute to remarkable increase in productivity in the industrial field.

- (Note) 1. Lockstep system: An arrangement in which two CPU cores run the same software and the results are compared to detect errors.
2. Nanometer: One nanometer is one billionth meter.
 3. AC servo drive: A device to be used with servo motors, which is a constituent part of servo systems for auto-control of industrial equipment.

4. Ethernet communication standard: One of computer network standards. A technical standard most widely used in LAN (local area network) generally used in offices or homes in the world. There are standards for industrial or automotive uses.
 5. TCM: The processor core accesses the high-speed on-chip memory directly through a dedicated memory interface, rather than via cache memory.
