CS+ for CC

Information on Support for New RX Family Devices

Outline

From January 2026 onwards, we will focus on e² studio to provide customers with a more consistent and competitive experience and support our customers' product development.

New RX family devices released after January 2026 will be integrated into e² studio, which provides more advanced features. Therefore, the integrated development environment (IDE) CS+ for CC will not be supported for new RX family devices.

1. IDE Support for New Devices

The CS+ for CC integrated development environment will no longer support new RX Family devices released after January 2026, with the exception of some devices under development.

2. IDE Support for Existing Devices

Existing RX Family devices will continue to be supported by CS+ for CC and e² studio. However, CS+ for CC will be only in maintenance support.

3. Regarding the CC-RX Compiler License Used With CS+ for CC

The CC-RX compiler license used with CS+ for CC can still be used with e² studio.

4. How to Migrate an Integrated Development Environment

Projects created in CS+ can be migrated to the e² studio for use.

For details on how to migrate the integrated development environment, please refer to the following URL.
