Business Report

(For the Period from April 1, 2009 to March 31, 2010 (the “Period”))

1. Review of Operations of the Group

(1) Progress and Results of Operations

(i) Overview

Although the fiscal year ended March 31, 2010 started out under seriously weak economy exerted by the financial crisis occurred in the fall of 2008, the plunging global economy bottomed out from the recession during the first half of the fiscal year ended March 31, 2010 and saw gradual and yet solid signs of recovery shored up by governments’ economic stimulus measures.

On a regional basis, in the United States, inventory investment, consumer spending and capital investment, etc., all showed signs of recovery. In the European market, although the recovery was weaker than other regions, pickup in export owing to the increased foreign demand pumped up the economy. In China, expanding domestic investment shored up by economic measures strengthened the recovery trend. As for Japan, increase in export brought positive effects on the domestic demand, leading the market to enter gradual recovery. However, there was a significant difference in the pace of economic recovery between emerging countries and developed countries. For example, despite the double-digit economic growth in emerging countries, such as China, developed countries including US, Europe and Japan, still underwent deflationary trend and a harsh employment situation.

Amidst this economic condition, the semiconductor market in which the Company operates experienced gradual recovery of demand, mainly with the semiconductors for digital consumers, PCs, and automotives. Especially demand for semiconductors for low-end model that target emerging countries increased, while demand for semiconductors for high-end market mainly targeting developed countries remained sluggish.

Amidst such a business environment, the Group adopted various strategies to provide fundamental improvement to company structure and accelerate the return to profitability, including policies such as “creation of products and technologies with high competitiveness and growth potential”, “acceleration of reorganization of production structure”, “decreasing fixed costs by creating efficiency in management”, in addition to preparation for the merger with Renesas Technology Corp., which was effected on April 1, 2010.

Firstly with respect to “creation of products and technologies with high competitiveness and growth potential”, resources for development within the Group have been concentrated in product areas associated with a prospect of future global growth, in particular centering on the product groups in energy-efficient and ecologically friendly product markets. The result of these initiatives is that the Group has expanded our product line-up in the “Ecology Microcontrollers” range which contributes to energy efficiency and the environment. In June 2009, product development was successfully completed for a 32-bit microcontroller including inverter control functions and the like for FA (factory automation) devices, washer/driers, power conditioners and air conditioners which are representative of solar-power systems. In November 2009, product development was successfully completed for an 8-bit microcontroller including power calculation functions for domestic-use smart meters contributing to the creation of a future smart grid society. In May 2009, product development was successfully completed for a world-first LSI which was adapted to the next-generation USB3.0 standard for the interface standard “USB (Universal Serial Bus)” which is widely used in electronic and electrical devices, and in March 2010, cumulative shipments of these products reached 3 million units.

Furthermore since LSI incorporating the Group’s embedded DRAM (eDRAM) technology has been highly evaluated by our customers, during the Period, we have redoubled our efforts to increase sales and expand product for various product markets requiring high image processing functions such as smart phones, 3D image display systems, mobile terminals and the like. In the second half of the period, we commenced mass production of LSI using 40-nanometer generation processing technology for leading-edge processing products which are widely applied mainly in the digital consumer electronics market. The Company is participating in a joint research and development project led by IBM Corporation into next-generation 32-nanometer generation processing technologies. In the Period, the Company is also participating in a joint research and development project for 28-nanometer generation processing technologies.

“Acceleration of reorganization of our production structure” has been implemented by the continuing reorganization of our production structure conducted by the Group since February 2007 for the purpose of bolstering cost competitiveness and improving production efficiency centering on production functions. Firstly with regard to semiconductor wafer processing (front-end process), we brought our original plan forward and, in December 2009, closed the NEC Semiconductors Kyushu and Yamaguchi 6-inch wafer production line, and closed the NEC Electronics America 6-inch wafer production line as originally planned in March 2010. We have concluded and announced a plan in October 2009 to close the NEC Semiconductors Kansai 5-inch wafer production line by March 2012. In addition, with respect to semiconductor assembly and inspection (back-end process), we have actively pursued transfer of such functions to overseas factories, and have concluded and announced a plan in October 2009 to close the Fukuoka Factory of NEC Semiconductors Kyushu and Yamaguchi by September 2011 and consolidate production in the Oita factory of NEC Semiconductors Kyushu and Yamaguchi.

“Decreasing fixed costs by creating efficiency in management” has been implemented by identifying efficiencies in overall management across the Group in research and development and production, reducing material procurement costs, promoting internal production and optimizing use of personnel to achieve large reductions in fixed costs.

In the context of the currently very harsh semiconductor market, our Company concluded a merger agreement with the Renesas Technology Corp. in December 2009 for the purpose of merging management with that company which is semiconductor company operating in a similar area to the Company, with the aim of increasing company value and shareholder value through further increasing customer satisfaction and further improving our technical capabilities and management base. Thereafter, after obtaining approval in Extraordinary General Meetings of Shareholders at both companies held in February 2010, the merger was concluded on April 1, 2010 to thereby create a new entity named "Renesas Electronics Corporation". Pursuant to the merger, on the same day, the Company executed allocation of shares to third parties being NEC Corporation, Hitachi, Ltd., and Mitsubishi Electric Corporation to thereby procure capital to the total sum of 134.6 billion yen for allocation to research and development investment, investment for expansion of overseas sales and costs associated with reformation of business structures.

The Group formed from the new Renesas Electronics Group is striving for further expansion of sales and profit by promoting global growth and promptly realizing management efficiencies by maximizing the synergies created by the merger based on three core products of MCUs, SoC (system on chip), and Analog & Power Devices.

(Note) 1. One nanometer is one-billionth of a meter.

2. NEC Semiconductors Kyushu Yamaguchi, Ltd. changed its company name to Renesas Semiconductor Kyushu Yamaguchi, Co., Ltd. on April 1, 2010.

3. NEC Electronics America, Inc. changed its company name to Renesas Electronics America Inc. on April 1, 2010.

4. NEC Semiconductors Kansai, Ltd. changed its company name to Renesas Semiconductor Kansai, Co., Ltd. on April 1, 2010.

(ii) Summary of Consolidated Financial Results

Consolidated net sales for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2010 were 471.0 billion yen, a decrease of 79.6 billion yen, or 14.5%, from the previous fiscal year.

Sales in all product areas except for automotive and industrial decreased. Especially computing and peripherals, and consumer electronics devices decreased by approximate of more than 25 percent year on year. In addition, the yen became stronger compared to the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year, which contributed to the decrease in net sales.

Consolidated operating loss was 49.2 billion yen, 17.2 billion yen improvement year on year. This was due to significant reduction of fixed cost by streamlining manufacturing-related costs, R&D cost and personnel costs, etc., despite the sharp decline in consolidated net sales year on year.

Consolidated ordinary loss was 54.4 billion yen, 21.8 billion yen improvement year on year. This was due to an improvement in consolidated operating loss year on year.

Consolidated net loss was 56.4 billion yen, 28.6 billion yen improvement year on year.

(Note) Pursuant to the merger with Renesas Technology Corp. as of April 1, 2010, integration of the accounting standards of the Company has been performed by varying the preparation standards for Financial Statements representing settlement of accounts for the third quarter of the Period (the period from October 1, 2009 to December 31, 2009) from accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (U.S. GAAP) to accounting principles generally accepted in Japan (Japanese GAAP) for the purpose of suitable performance of financial statement reporting after the merger. Accordingly, the figures stated for the Period (eighth period) are based on Japanese GAAP, and therefore, for reference purpose, the seventh period has also be stated using figures prepared on the basis of Japanese GAAP.

(iii) Review of Operations by End-Market Applications

Consolidated net sales by end-market application broken down into categories according to principal applications and characteristics of semiconductors for the Period are as follows:

Communications

Net sales of semiconductors for communications applications decreased 8.8 billion yen (14.5 percent) from the previous year, to 51.7 billion yen. Products such as semiconductors for broadband networking equipment including routers and mobile-phone base stations, and semiconductors for mobile handsets are included in this category.

Sales of semiconductors for broadband networking equipment, ICs for camera-equipped mobile phones and digital baseband ICs all decreased year on year.

Computing and Peripherals

(2) Research and Development by the Group

The Group is actively engaged in the research and development of advanced products and technology in the field of semiconductors to provide the best semiconductor solution to meet its customer's various needs. Major achievements of research and development activities in the Period are as follows:

(i) Microcontrollers for Smart Meters to Create a Smart Grid

The Group has successfully completed product development for an 8-bit microcontroller for "smart meters" for use as domestic high-performance power meters.

Currently, as part of efforts for global environmental protection, countries around the world are attempting to create a "smart grid" for the purpose of optimizing power efficiency by suitable regulation of supply and demand of power by application of information technology (IT). The creation of such smart grid will require conventional mechanical meters to be replaced by the adoption of high-performance smart meters enabling the power supplier to understand power usage periods and usage amount in real time through a communication network with consumers.

The microcontroller successfully completing product development on this occasion concentrates in a single semiconductor chip the main functions required for the development of a smart meter including high-level analog-digital conversion functions, power calculation functions and power quality measurement functions. The product structure enables creation of a line-up of products adapted to meter standards used in regions around the world, focusing primarily on Japan, China and North America to thereby enable worldwide application.

In addition to smart meters, the Group is working toward the creation of a smart grid society by focusing on the development of products and technologies that can be adapted to power conditioners which are required for the connection of solar energy to the power grid of a power company, and therefore have the desire to contribute to the optimization of power usage by society at large.

(ii) USB3.0 Compliant Host Controller LSI

Product development has been successfully completed for a world-first LSI adapted to the next-generation USB3.0 standard for the interface standard "USB (Universal Serial Bus)" which is widely used in connections for electronic and electrical devices.

A USB is the recognized interface standard used for connection of devices such as personal computers and digital consumer electronics with related peripheral devices for data transfer, and the standard is currently widely applied around the world. The LSI which has been developed on this occasion is a host controller LSI for electrical and electronic devices compliant with a USB3.0 standard which is the next-generation standard to the current USB2.0 standard, and realizes a high-capacity and high-speed data transfer of 5 gigabits per second (more than 10 times the data transfer speed of USB2.0).

In September 2009, the Group acquired a world-first USB3.0 certification for such host controller LSI from the “USB Implementers Forum (USB-IF)” which is the USB specification formulation body, and thereafter commenced to ship product. Going forward, the commencement of sales of USB3.0 compliant personal computers in January 2010 had a bullish effect on product shipments and cumulative shipments reached 3 million units by March 2010.

The Group is expecting increasing application of USB3.0 compliant devices and we are actively seeking to expand sales of the USB 3.0 host controller LSI.

(3) Capital Expenditures of the Group

During this Period, the Group invested a total of 31.4 billion yen in capital expenditures with the aim of expanding facilities for using 300mm wafers and other production facilities in back-end process.

(4) Financing Activities of the Group

During this Period there were no financing activities important enough to require special mention.

(Note) As described in “1-(12)-(ii) Issuance of New Shares by way of Third Party Allotment” section below, the Company newly issued shares by way of third party allotment on April 1, 2010 and raised 134.6 billion yen.

(5) Issues to be Addressed by the Group

(i) Management Policies

As described in “1-(1)-(i) Overview” section above, completing the merger with Renesas Technology Corp., the newly established Renesas Electronics Corporation commenced business operations on April 1, 2010.

The Group, as new Renesas Electronics Group, sets up the following corporate philosophy, which expresses the Group’s identity and mission, and corporate vision that shows the Group’s target direction. Under these philosophy and vision, Renesas Electronics Group is aiming to increase its business value and shareholders value as the world’s leading semiconductor company by focusing on three areas of technology expertise, MCUs, SoC solutions, and Analog & Power devices.

<Corporate Philosophy>

Harnessing its collective expertise in new technologies, Renesas Electronics Group contributes to a world where people and the planet prosper in harmony by realizing our vision and building our future.

<Corporate Vision>

We will be first to respond to customer needs worldwide with our creative power and technology innovations to become a strong, growing semiconductor manufacturer and a trustworthy partner.

(ii) Issues to be Addressed

With intensifying global-scale competition and changes in the market structures, the semiconductor market in which Renesas Electronics Group operates is expected to continue to be in a severe situation.

Amidst this business condition, it is essential for the Group, under the corporate philosophy and vision stated above, to achieve growth on a global-scale by attaining merger synergies at an early stage and leveraging resources generated from increased management efficiency for the global businesses. To achieve this goal, the Renesas Electronics Group recognizes the following three issues as tasks the Group needs to address.

As an efficient approach to these tasks, the Renesas Electronics Group will construct common corporate plans within the first hundred days after the merger. In this plan, the Group will decide on the focused business area, complete review of the businesses, and study and decide policies and plans including the fixed-cost reduction measures, respectively for the Group's overall business areas, such as development, manufacturing, sales, information systems, and material procurement. The Renesas Electronics Group will proactively promote this "100-day project" and ensure steady implementation of these policies to address the following significant issues.

(a) Business expansion and strengthening of product competitiveness

Through the merger, the Renesas Electronics Group retains approximately 30 percent of share and is the world's leading supplier in the global MCU market. The Group will utilize this strong competitiveness in the MCU market for the growing Analog & Power businesses to expand sales of Analog & Power devices at an early stage. Specifically, since Analog & Power devices are used together with MCUs, Renesas Electronics Group expects Analog & Power devices to generate great business opportunities in connection with its customers for MCUs. The Group will therefore proactively market its Analog & Power devices by utilizing the extensive merged product lineups, and in the mid-term, plans to efficiently utilize its development resources for product development and strengthen product competitiveness to secure unexplored business chances to expand the Group's sales and profitability.

As for SoC solutions, the Group will concentrate on expanding sales and profit by redefining the Group's focused areas and product lineups based on market scales, growth potential, and competitiveness, and by reconstructing the business portfolio, and strengthening the product competitiveness.

(b) Improve cost competitiveness

To improve its cost-competitiveness, the Group has been promoting structural reforms, such as closing of its manufacturing lines and business integration. However, with the structural changes of the world's economy including rapid progress of globalization and expansion of emerging markets, it is essential for the Group to further reinforce its cost competitiveness.

To address this task, Renesas Electronics Group will proactively promote management efficiency and thorough cost reductions by utilizing merger synergies for the Group's overall business areas, such as design, development, manufacturing, sales, and material procurement. For example, the Group will standardize its design and development platforms, improve fab utilization rates by mutually exploiting the Group's manufacturing facilities, standardize purchasing materials, consolidate various infrastructure systems, and integrate duplicate operations.

(c) Expand global businesses

The Renesas Electronics Group holds approximately 30 percent world leading share in the MCU market. However, most of its share comes from Japan, and the Group only has approximately 20 percent share in the overseas MCU market except for Japan. To rapidly raise its MCU share in such market to 30 percent, the Renesas Electronics Group will engage in various measures on sales, development and manufacturing, etc.

Recently, in the global semiconductor market, expansion of Chinese and other emerging markets have been accelerating rapidly. It is Renesas Electronics Group's key for growth to expand sales and shares, and secure profitability particularly in China and Asian regions that are becoming the world's manufacturing plants. The Group will increasingly focus its management resources on marketing, sales and development in China and Asian regions to expand sales of existing products and to develop products that best suit the local customers demand.

With these measures, the Renesas Electronics Group will increase its overseas semiconductor sales ratio to over 60 percent and expand its sales and profit through global business growth.

We appreciate shareholders' continued support.

Others

Although NEC Electronics America, Inc., a subsidiary in U.S., has resolved by settlement, class action civil antitrust lawsuits from direct purchasers (customers who had directly purchased DRAM from the Group in the past), it is still in settlement negotiations with several customers who have opted out of such class action lawsuits.

NEC Electronics America, Inc. has also been named as one of the defendants in numerous class action civil lawsuits from indirect purchasers (customers who had purchased products containing DRAM), as well as a number of antitrust lawsuits filed by the Attorneys General of numerous states in the U.S.

Additionally, the Group is fully cooperating with and providing information to the European Commission in its investigation of potential violation of the competition laws in the DRAM industry. If the Group is found to be in violation of the competition laws, fines may be imposed by the European Commission.

The Group is also subject to investigations by the U.S. Department of Justice, the European Commission, the Korea Fair Trade Commission, and the Competition Bureau of Canada in connection with potential antitrust violations in the thin-film transistor liquid crystal display (TFT-LCD) industry. In May 2009, the European Commission has issued a statement of objections against the parties concerned and has entered into the formal investigation process. The Group has not received this statement of objections.

NEC Electronics America, Inc., and NEC Electronics remain defendants in numerous class action civil antitrust lawsuits in the United States and Canada seeking damages for alleged antitrust violations in the SRAM industry. Among these cases, class action civil antitrust lawsuits in the U.S. are expected to be resolved by settlement.

Although the outcome of the aforementioned investigations, antitrust lawsuits and settlement negotiations is not known at this time, the Group has recorded probable and reasonably estimable losses in the amount of 2,253 million yen in provision for contingent loss related to the DRAM civil lawsuits and settlements in the U.S. and investigations by the European Commission. It is possible that such estimated amount may increase or decrease with the progress of such cases in the futures. No other expenses pertaining to other civil lawsuits and official investigations have been recorded, since the Group's liability for compensation pertaining to such lawsuits and its alleged behavior under such investigations remain undetermined. Consequently, any reasonable estimate of related expenses and losses is not feasible at this time.

Notes to Financial Instruments

1. Conditions of Financial Instruments

(1) Policies for financial instruments

Regarding funding operations, the Group uses only short-term deposits and financial assets which are relatively safe. Regarding financing, the Group uses mainly bank borrowings from banks and corporate bonds. The Group utilizes derivative financial instruments to manage fluctuations in foreign currency exchange rates. The Group's policies prohibit holding or issuing derivative financial instruments for trading purposes.

(2) Contents and risks of financial instruments and risk management

Notes and accounts receivable-trade and accounts receivable-other are exposed to credit risks. Conforming to internal rules for management of account receivable, the Group regularly checks major customers' credit and manages due dates of collection and balances by each customer.

The management policies regarding short-term and long-term investment securities are as follows; regarding short-term financial instruments, the Group deals with banks with high credibility. Securities of the issuing companies, which the Group has relations with on business, are exposed to risks of marketable fluctuations. By regularly checking the fair value of the securities, financial conditions of the issuing companies and considering the relationships on business, the Group reexamines the merit of holding the securities.

The maturities of notes and accounts payable-trade are within one year.

Most of short-term borrowings are utilized in operations. Most of long-term borrowings, bonds with share subscription rights and lease obligations under finance lease transactions are utilized for capital investments. Their repayment terms are within 5 years after the fiscal year-end.

The Group enters into forward exchange contracts in order to hedge the risks from exchange rate fluctuations of account receivables and account payables denominated in foreign currencies.

The Group's policies for managing derivatives are as follows; the Group conforms to internal rules for the management of derivatives and transacts only with major financial institutions to reduce credit risks.

Because accounts payable and borrowings are exposed to liquidity risks, Renesas Electronics and each subsidiary manage them by making financial plan and have short-term commitment lines, respectively.

(3) Concentration of credit risks

As of March 31, 2010, 48% of accounts receivables were arising from the major customers.

2. Fair Value of Financial Instruments

The fair values of financial instruments presented in consolidated balance sheet as of March 31, 2010 were as follows; the table below does not include the financial instruments which are extremely difficult for the Group to estimate their fair values. (Note 2)
